Friendship.

Friendship may very properly be called the child of love and esteem, for it is a strong tie and an habitual inclination between two persons to promote the real good and happiness of each other.

As you have desired me to put you in the readiest way to acquire a free, elegant and expeditious Method of Writing, I know the speedy Dispatch of Business is of material consequence to you, I recommend a running Hand of this Nature, being convinced that it is in every Respect, preferable to the formal Round Method commonly taught. Indeed, I am persuaded, that your own judgment will lead you to the same conviction, if you only compare the Natural Simplicity of the one with the studied Formality of the other. If you accustom yourself to strike large Capitals and simple bold flourishes, by Command of Hand, it will materially assist the Freedom of your Pen.

Leave not a wreck behind.)*

When Learning's triumph o'er her barbarous foes
 First reared the Stage immortal. Shakspeare rose;
 Each change of many coloured life he drew,
 Exhausted worlds, and then imagin'd new.

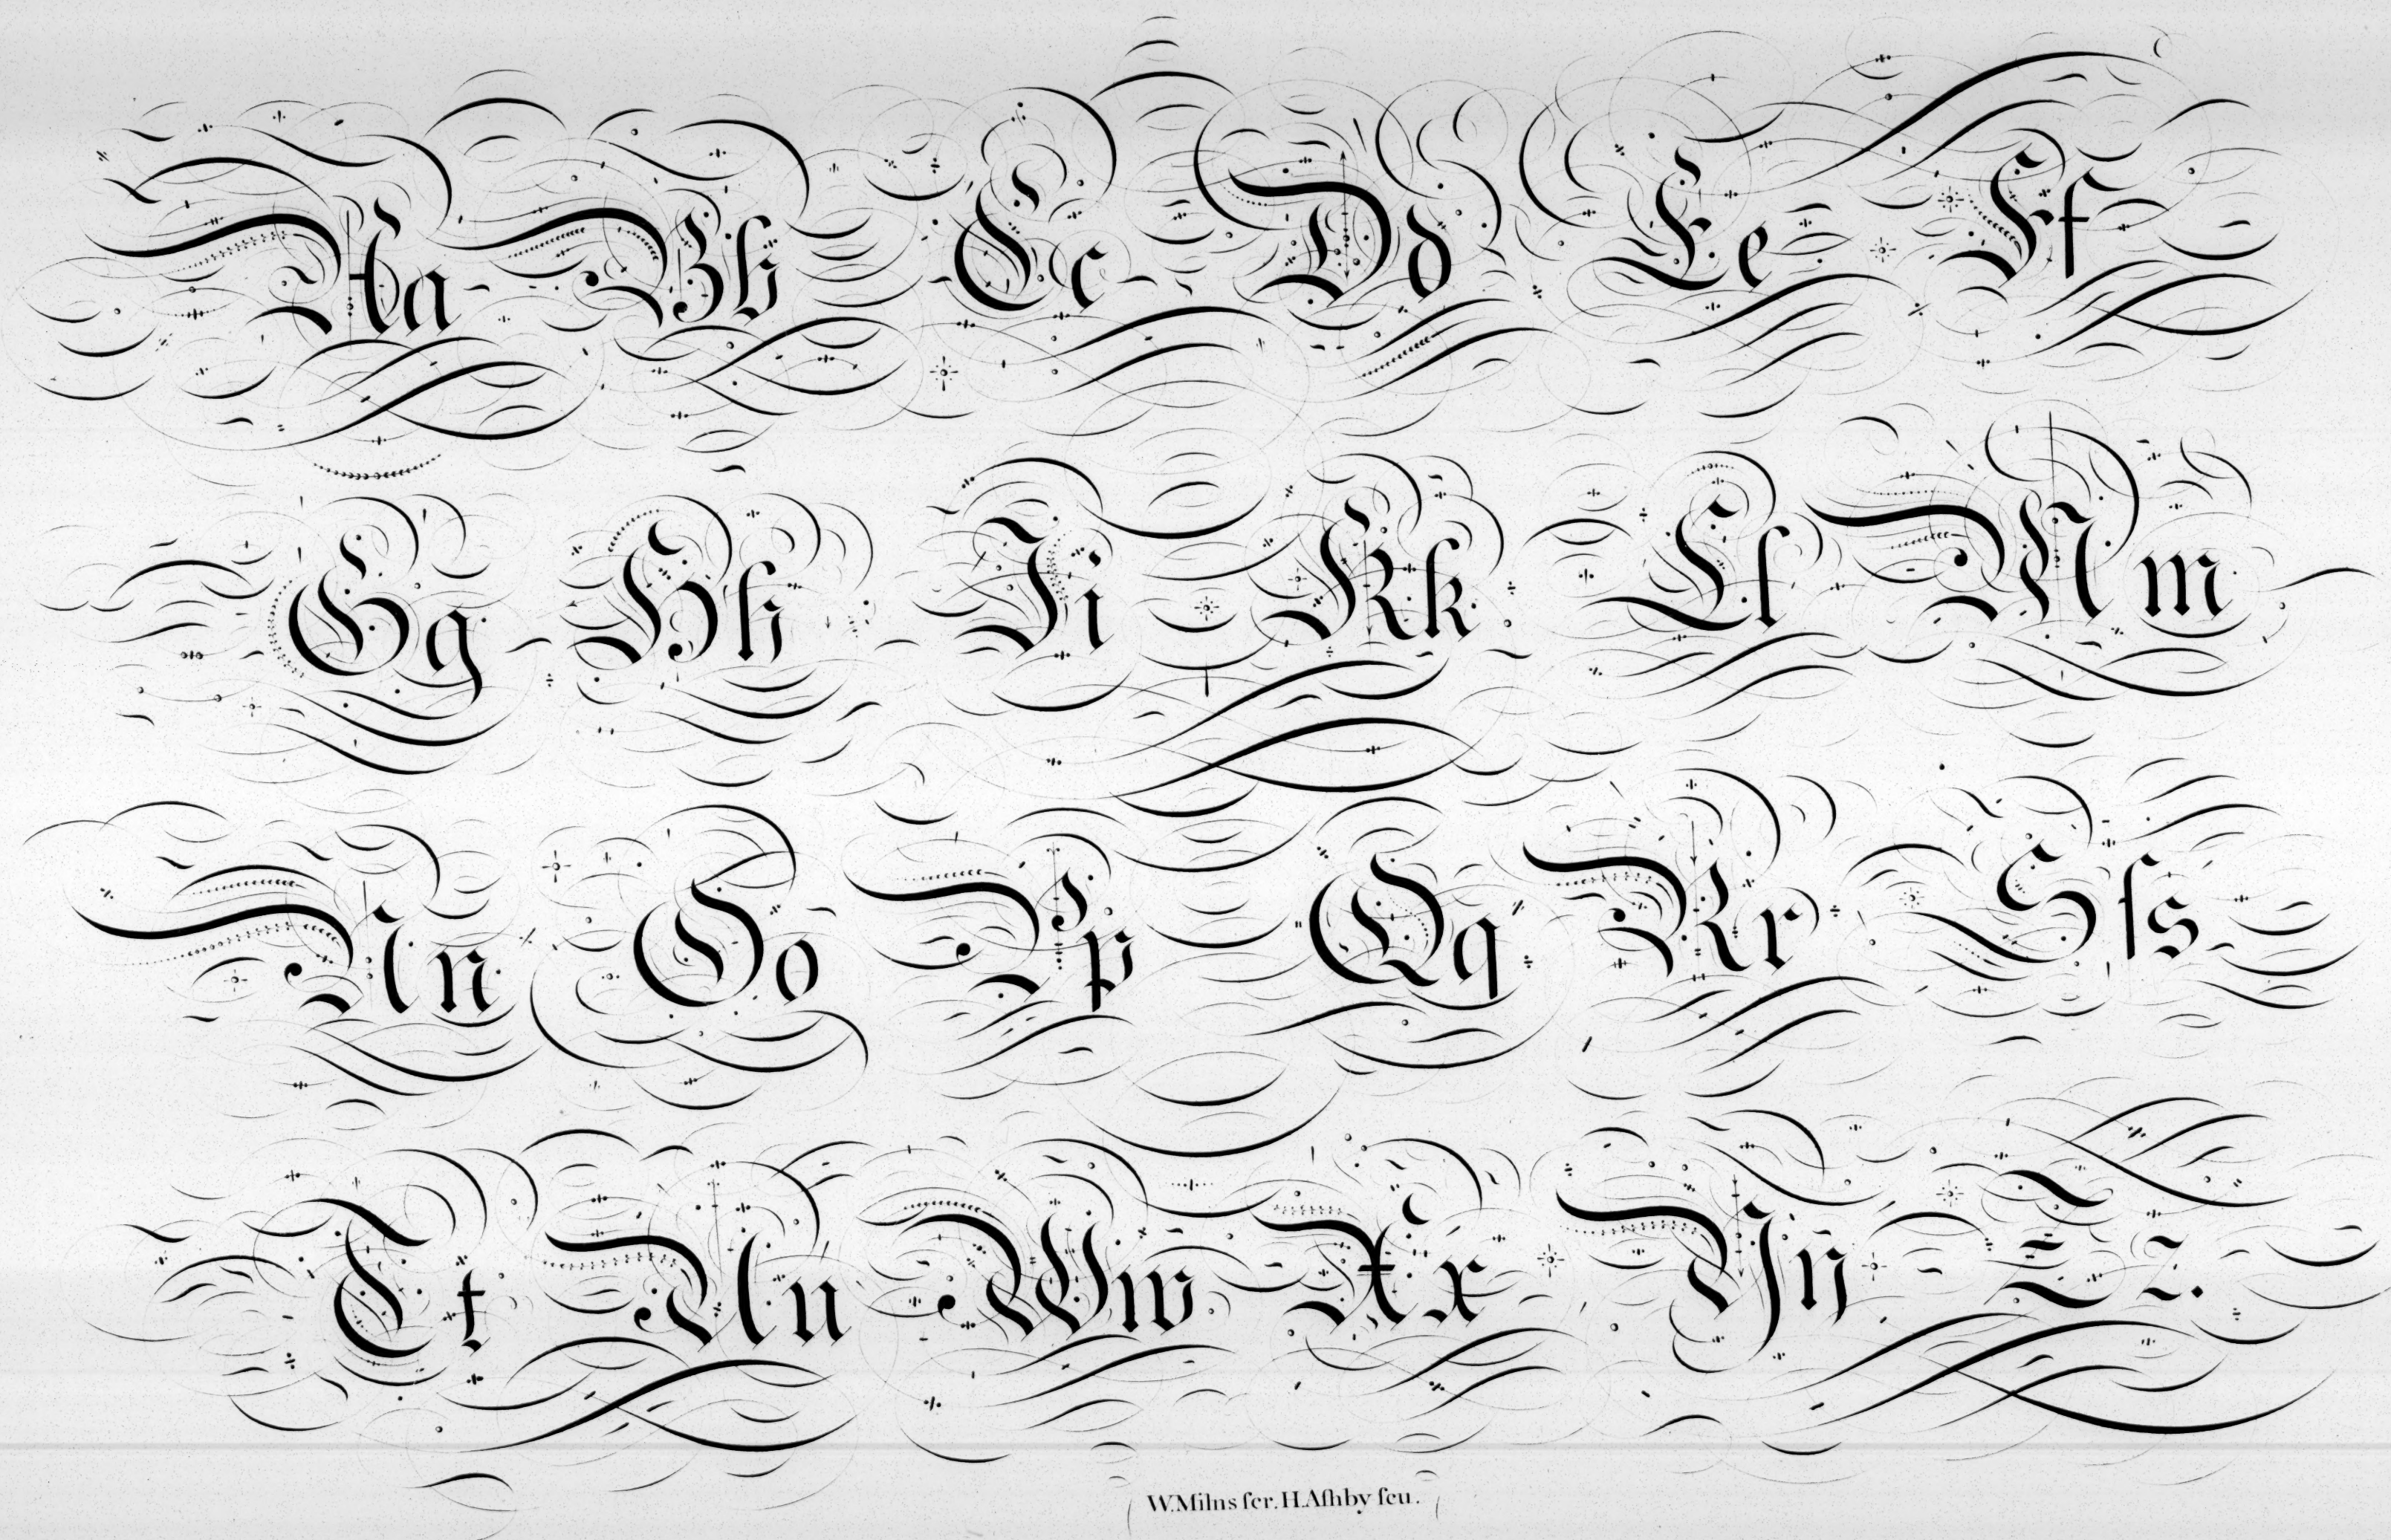

Existence saw him spurn her bounded reign,
 And panting Time toild after him in vain!
 His powerful strokes presiding. Truth confess'd,
 And unresisted. Passion storm'd the breast.

Seek you to train your favorite boy?
 Each caution every Care employ;
 And ere you venture to confide,
 Let his Preceptor's heart be try'd:
 Weigh well his manners, life & scope,
 On these depends thy future hope.
